ENGLISHMEN MUSE OVER WAR CLOUD

Much Serious Thought Concerning Possibility of a European Mixup.

CHESTERTON'S POEM

Writes Lyric Sermon to Countrymen on Success of Balkan States.

DE WALDEN AS A SHOT

Lord Tells About Falconry and Recommends Temper Trying Sulky Goshawk.

Special Cable Despatch to The Sun.
LONDON, Nov. 2.—More than once recently this letter has called attention to the healthy self-criticism in which the Britisher has recently been indulging in a seemingly serious spirit. The war in the Balkans has given this class of Englishman further food for thought. What this war brought to his mind was echoed, not originated, by Lord Roberts's stirring speech at Sheffield some time ago which the Daily Mail has reprinted every day for nearly a week.

Englishmen have for a long time complacently taken it as an ordinary matter of fact that their country is the greatest factor in European affairs. Apart from all question of international politics, more than one thing has recently given the thinking Englishman pause when he was faced with the idea of what the country could do if it were actually plunged into the vortex which for years many people have declared must be the outcome of the struggle which is now actually proceeding in the Balkans and the avoidance of which is at the present moment exercising the mind of every great European power.

The fact of tiny Montenegro striking the first blow appealed strongly to the imagination. Then with characteristic slowness Englishmen began to realize that within a few days little Balkan States that as pretensions they had smiled good naturedly had put in the field some 600,000 armed and disciplined men.

Taking the courageous action of the little Montenegrin kingdom as his text, Gilbert Keith Chesterton, the author, writes a fine sermon in verse to his fellow countrymen which he calls "The March of the Black Mountain." It runs as follows:

What will there be to remember
Of us in the days to be?
Whose faith was a trodden ember
And even our doubt not free.
Parliaments built of paper
And the soft words of gold
That twist like a wicker tape
In the weak aggressor's hold.
A hush around Hunger slaying,
A city of serfs unloved,
What shall we leave for a saying
To praise us when we are dead?
But men shall remember the Mountain
That broke its forest chains,
And men shall remember the Mountain
When it marches against the plains
And smashes the crown of the crown,
And season and ship and street,
When the Mountain came to Mahomet
And looked small before his feet
His head was high as the crescent
Of the moon that seemed his crown,
And on glory of past and present
The light of his eyes looked down.
One hand went out to the morning
Over Brahmin and Buddhist slain,
And one to the west in scouring
To point at the scars of Spain.
One foot on the hills for war
By the little Mountain tread,
And one was in a garden
And stood on the grave of God.
But men shall remember the Mountain
Though it fall down like a tree;
They shall see the sign of the Mountain,
Faith cast into the sea.
Though the crooked words overcome it
And the Crooked Moon ride free,
When the Mountain comes to Mahomet
It has more life than he.
But what will there be to remember
Of what will there be to see—
Though our towns through a long November
Abide to the end and be
Strength of slave and merchant
Whose iron is ruled by gold—
Peace of immortal pain—
Love that is hate grown cold.
Are these a bribe or a warning
That we turn not to the sun,
Nor look on the lands of morning,
Where deeds at last are done?
When men shall remember the Mountain
When truth forgets the plain
And walk in the way of the Mountain
It did not fall in vain.
Death and eclipse and comet
Thunder and peals that rend
When the Mountain came to Mahomet
Because it was the end.

Paragraphs have lately appeared in various newspapers referring to Lord Howard de Walden's interest and skill in the ancient sport of falconry and his determination to revive it.

In the hope of getting some interesting matter about the sport, which might appeal to Americans The Sun asked Lord Howard de Walden for an article on the subject. His lordship, who is interested in many and diverse arts and sports, pleaded that the paragraph in the newspapers was misleading.

He said: "I confess that I dabble in falconry a little, but I am not an authority and would not like to have anything I said or wrote fall into the hands of an expert. In fact I know just enough about falconry to be aware of the fact that I know nothing."

"So far as I know," continued Lord de Walden, "the sport is limited here, though I presume it would not be in America, by the lack of open spaces and the fact that a day's bag is less than you can get in half an hour with a gun. The majority of sportsmen are so used to a large slaughter that it appeals to them very little. It also requires a falconer, and they are now nearly extinct, and also considerable patience, which is likewise nearly extinct. It is, of course, a very beautiful sport so far as I have seen, but my experience has been confined entirely to partridges and rabbits. Gull and rook taking I have not yet seen, but I believe

WRITES SEQUEL TO "BLUE BIRD"

Maurice Maeterlinck

LONDON, Oct. 19.—Lovers of Maeterlinck's "Blue Bird" will be delighted to hear that the dramatist has just completed his promised sequel to that beautiful allegorical play. In the sequel the story, of Tyltyl and Mytyl begins when they have grown older, and is said by those who have seen the manuscript to appeal, as did "The Blue Bird," not only to children but to grownups.

Mme. Georgette Leblanc, Maeterlinck's wife, has at the same time been hard at work preparing a new version of "The Blue Bird" after the style of Hans Christian Andersen. She says that it is her design in this version to bring the morality and philosophy of the play within the mental grasp of a child. Her version and her husband's sequel of "The Blue Bird" are to be published simultaneously, when ready, in England, Germany, Russia and France.

Mme. Leblanc is also writing an essay on the wonderful achievements of Helen Keller, the famous blind American, whom she met in Boston. In this connection Mme. Leblanc says that Miss Keller presents to the world the greatest lesson in the power of the will to overcome stupendous natural disadvantages which has ever been recorded, and while she feels that she cannot say all that ought to be said about the remarkable girl, she will try to pay her a fitting tribute.

that they afford the finest sport of all, though the quarry is of no value.

"I keep a few falcons and goshawks, which give me a good deal of amusement. If you want a real trial of temper try dealing with a sulky goshawk. I have just recovered one that I lost nearly a month ago. Of course keepers take positive delight in shooting your hawks, as they believe they will interfere with their poultry, which is not true of the falcons. I do not know what else I can tell you about them, as I do not know much except when they are any good they always throw a fit and die."

A lawsuit has been entered in London which, unless it is settled out of court, will revive echoes of the famous French murder trial of Mme. Steinheil, the confidante and mistress of the late President Faure. After her acquittal Mme. Steinheil came to live in London, where she still is. A little while ago a London publisher brought out a book dealing with the subject of women and crime. One chapter was devoted to cases in which beautiful women were acquitted when they were guilty because of sentimental appeal to the jury, and Mme. Steinheil was quoted as a case in point. Mme. Steinheil immediately issued a writ of libel, claiming $50,000 damages, and briefed the most expensive counsel. The publishers are now trying to get her to settle for $5,000, but so far she has refused the offer.

22 YEARS WITHOUT A BATH.

Old Russian Woman's Death Due to Malady From Uncleanliness.

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 20.—An old lady possessed of 1,000,000 rubles ($500,000), has just died here from a malady due to twenty-two years abstinence from soap and water. She allowed nobody but a single servant to enter her house, prepared her own food from fear of being poisoned and allowed mice and rats to play about unmolested.

The cause of her death is the more extraordinary because Russians are great believers in the bath and most of them have a hot steam bath every week.

And this reminds one that a society has been started in Germany for persuading people to take a weekly tub. It is placarding German towns with attractive posters, on which are printed the words "A weekly bath for every German."

And there are luxurious Englishmen and Americans who complain if they cannot have a bath every day. Unashamed, as the Germans would say.

DIDN'T PRINT BEST STORY.

Late Melton Prior Kept Sir Evelyn Wood's Quip Out of Book.

LONDON, Oct. 22.—The reminiscences of the late Melton Prior, the artist war correspondent, just published, do not contain, for obvious reasons, perhaps the best story told of that irrepressible little man.

At a dinner given to Mr. Prior, the chairman, Sir Evelyn Wood, who was seated next to the guest of the evening, commenced his speech thus: "Our honored guest, Mr. Prior, has been in twenty-one engagements." Prior, prompting, "Twenty-two, my lord, twenty-two." Sir Evelyn continued, "In twenty-two engagements, and has never seen a shot fired!"

MAY PROBE AVIATOR'S DEATH.

Press Incensed Because Birdman Was Victim of Red Tape.

PARIS, Oct. 22.—Last Sunday an aviator fell from his aeroplane near Bordeaux and was killed. The event, which two or three years ago would have meant the publication of a special evening edition, was dismissed in three lines in the morning papers, some of which did not even mention it.

As far as could be judged from the inadequate reports this accident was caused by trick flying to amuse an aviation meeting. The last fatal accident preceding this one by one or two days, however, has caused considerable indignation in the aviation world. The aviator, Blanc, was testing a monoplane at the Chalon camp previous to its being accepted by the War Department when at a height of over a thousand feet the left wing collapsed and the machine fell.

Newspaper investigation has shown that the apparatus was an Antoinette, the type that Latham used in his attempts to fly the Channel. Since those days the Antoinette had disappeared from sight, the company that made them had been wound up and everybody seemed agreed that it was true, as was said during its existence, that it needed a Latham to fly an Antoinette.

Some explanation therefore has been sought as to how at this late day an Antoinette should be offered to the army, and it appears that among the assets of the defunct company was a contract with the Government to supply four machines. The military authorities were not anxious to accept a monoplane of a type for which no factory exists, which no school employs and for which it would be difficult to find pilots, the last known pilot of the type, Comte de Robillard, having been killed at Nice (victim also of a broken wing), but the contract held and the machines when presented had to be tested and accepted if they passed the tests. The result has been the death of the aviator appointed to carry out the trials and the aviation press is demanding an investigation to fix the blame on those responsible.

HIS BROTHER 100 YEARS DEAD.

Frenchman Has Mass Said for Relative in Napoleon's Army.

PARIS, Oct. 22.—An inhabitant of Flaigne-les-Oliviers, in the Ardennes, has had a mass celebrated on the occasion of the centenary of his brother's death, which took place at Moscow on October 15, 1812, owing to wounds received when a soldier in Napoleon's army.

The explanation of this strange event lies in the fact that the brother who died 100 years ago was only a half brother, Arsene Laplace, beadle of the church at Flaigne, is the son of Florestan Laplace, born, as the majority registers show, in 1769. The father married in 1788 and had a son in 1789. This was the son who died in Moscow 100 years ago.

BORROWS AMBASSADOR'S HOUSE FOR RECEPTION

Brilliant Function Follows the Wedding of Miss Benson
and Capt. Wake.

LIVELY WEEK IN LONDON

Society Plans Big Fancy Dress
Ball for Benefit of a Hospital.

Special Cable Despatch to The Sun.
LONDON, Nov. 2.—The most brilliant social event and the greatest gathering of society since the height of the last London season was the marriage at St. Margaret's Westminster, on Wednesday of Miss Benson to Capt. Hereward Wake the heir of Sir Hereward Wake and a lineal descendant of King'sley's hero.

The bride is a niece of Sir George Holford, the owner of Dorchester House, who borrowed the house from Ambassador Whitelaw Reid in order to allow Mrs. Benson to have the wedding reception there. A brilliant company was present, including Mr. and Mrs. Whitehead Reid and the Duchess of Marlborough, who left the rest cure and looked well in a dress of bronze velvet with a little Henry VIII. hat surrounded with white feathers and William Phillips, the secretary of the embassy. The wedding present of Mr. and Mrs. Reid was a George III. silver service on a large silver tray.

T. E. Robins, son of the late Major R. P. and Mrs. Robins of Chestnut Hill, Philadelphia, was married on Wednesday at St. Peter's in Eaton square to Mary Wroughton, daughter of the late Philip and Mrs. Wroughton of Woolley Park, Wantage.

Among the fashionable crowd at the Olympia Skating Rink on Sunday was the Princess of Thurn and Taxis and the Earl and Countess of Craven.

Mr. and Mrs. George Lawson Johnston have arrived in London from South America.

Ambassador Reid has left London and gone to Aberystwith, a watering place in Wales.

Alfred Bird, M. P., gave a dinner at the Piccadilly Hotel in honor of Shirley Kellogg's first appearance in a musical sketch called "The Blue House" at the Hippodrome. The guests included Lord Claud Hamilton, M. P., Sir George and Lady Doughty and others.

A London society is gratified over the fact that Prince Lichnowsky, the new German Ambassador, is married. Count Wolff-Metternich was a bachelor and Baron Marshall von Bieberstein and his wife, though they were here only a short time, were old and not fond of entertaining. The Princess Lichnowsky, however, is an acquisition to society. She will be a decidedly youthful hostess for the wife of the Ambassador, as she is some twenty years younger than her husband.

Society is planning another one of those great pageants, or rather fancy dress balls, which have been such a feature of the last couple of years. This will be held on December 1 at Albert Hall in aid of University College Hospital. It is called the "Christmas Pantomime Ball," and will include twenty-five processions illustrating fairy stories. Lord Alington has arranged the Bluebeard procession. Bluebeard's wives will include such well known members of society as Miss Muriel Wilson, Mrs. Ralph Peto, and Mrs. Walter Rubens. Lady Alington will arrange a pageant representative of Macbeth's Lichnowsky, however, is an acquisition to society. She will be a decidedly youthful hostess for the wife of the Ambassador, as she is some twenty years younger than her husband.

Charles Frohman soon recognized the fact that the public confirmed the wholesale condemnation by the first night audience of the contributions of George Bernard Shaw and Sir Arthur Pinero to his "triple bill" at the Duke of York's Theatre and it will be replaced on November 17 by Artist Penrhyn Stanlaw's "adaptation" of Kistemaker's "Instinct," which had a trial performance three weeks ago at the Liverpool Repertory Theatre with Aubrey Smith and Lilian Braithwaite in the leading roles. Mr. Berrie's contribution to the "triple bill," "Roseland," will remain.

$1.85 Imported Broadcloths at 98c.

NOW COMES THE MONTH that brings the real opening of the social season, the real need for winter clothes. We meet it with full stocks of the most desired fabrics—the largest and best stocks we have ever offered. We meet it also with three noteworthy groups of seasonable, excellent and desirable Dress Fabrics at low prices that are astonishing. These Fabrics were gathered from several sources—our careful choices from the whole market's best opportunities.

Several thousand yards of fine imported Broadcloths head the list. They are sponged and shrunk and ready for the needle, yet they have a fine and lustrous surface. Colors are the best also—navy, black, brown, garnet, ruby, hunter's green, peacock green, dahlia. 52 to 54 inches wide and $1.85 value for 98c. a yard.

A fine lot of all wool Fabrics from Germany and France. Colors are mostly navy and black. Self striped Serges and Melrose, Bedford Cords, Pebble Worsted Cloths, etc. They are 44 to 50 inches wide.

Very high grade Fabrics from France in this collection. There are Batines in black and navy; navy Whipcords, Imperial Serges in black, navy and cream, coating Serges in brown, Copenhagen and tan. 47 to 54 inches wide.

Second Floor, Elm Place.

$2 and $2.25 Dress Fabrics at 98c. a Yard.

ONE MODEL HAS A LAY-DOWN ROUND COLLAR of velvet placed over another of gold lace under chiffon, cut with square ends, and a chemise of shadow lace. The skirt is slightly raised at the waist line and is trimmed by the outlining of an overskirt that starts in front of the hip line and is graduated to the back. Another has a sailor collar of white satin, the front in Robespierre effect, with two soft falls of shadow lace, V neck. The long sleeves with wrist ruffles, the plain skirt with plaited girdle are severe but very effective.

$25 to $35 Party and Evening Frocks at $18.98.

All of them of the fashionable charmeuse, plain or brocade, with elaborate use of shadow and fancy laces. One is made with long skirt, draped girdle and bib front over waist of shadow lace. There is a front piece of very effective crystal passementerie and crystal passementerie outlines the satin upon the lace. Another is made with overskirt draped low to the sides in a panier effect over an accordion plaited skirt. In one model the dress is of cerise charmeuse, the velvet bows of pale blue; a very French combination. A model of brocade charmeuse has the V neck outlined with band of gold lace, the waist in jumper style over shadow lace, draped skirt, girdle with cashmere.

Women's Coats, Special at $25. Values to $50.

One of broadcloth has the English back, which resembles a man's smart topcoat. This Coat is in the new three-quarter length. One of smart plaids, very warm, is in a model closely resembling that of broadcloth, with the big cuffs and the collar in two shades of velvet, repeating the two most prominent in the plaid. Another model has the big full sleeves fitted in the French fashion by a dart across the bust line and has the inside sleeves of satin gathered upon elastic for warmth. Second Floor.
